

WORLD FOOD DAY

World Food Day, on October 16th of each year, marks the founding of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization. From its international headquarters in Rome, Italy, this organization works with all the world's governments to build a system which will assure a safe and plentiful food supply for all people, every day throughout the year.

World Food Day is an appropriate opportunity to reflect on how much we owe the people who provide our food, raising it up from the fields, the forests, and the oceans. It is an appropriate time to learn how we human beings interact with the natural world around us of land, water, sunshine, and air, to use and preserve the environment. It is an occasion to think about how each of us, or many of us working together, can contribute to the age-old, worldwide struggle for food security.

Is there a World Food Day organizer or project leader in your community? If there is, you can help. If there isn't, you can be one.
